Our Story

Locally inspired by everyday hot sauce commonly known as 'Lada' in North Borneo. Lada is a solid member of every table and a staple condiment with every meal in North Borneo. It's thick, tangy, and most importantly, spicy!

BHS journey began with a search for the elusive small and fiery Mompoporok Chilli. Mompoporok is a native Dusun word for Bulbul birds, who are very fond of eating these chillis and dispersing its seed. The birds are attracted to these wild-growing chilli just as it ripens to a bright red colour. Making them easy to spot and even easier to eat as it stands upright against the rest of the chilli bush Our Research & Development team ventured to seek out places where this symbiosis occurs. And that is when small chilli plantations in Kunak, North Borneo were discovered. Through the years, Mompoporok Chilli continues to be cultivated by Kunak farmers with minimal interventions to spur and quicken its growth. This traditional method of farming differs from the methods used for chilli fruit, but a harvest that is spicier, more flavourful and aromatic.

Our Mission

Due to how it is grown naturally, Mompoporok Chilli can be susceptible to the weather and changes in season, threatening its steady supply. Working directly with plantations and farmers, Borneo Hot Sauce plans to provide support that goes beyond securing a successful harvest. This includes working directly with local communities and farmers, providing sustainable income and job security within the farming sector, boosting the Agricultural industry in Kunak and exhibiting Borneo as a hothouse for the best chillis in SouthEast Asia and globally.
